

Bull's Run Summer Newsletter

July, 2014

Bull's Run Nature Sanctuary and Arboretum is a non-profit volunteer organization located in NE Butler County and serving the surrounding community. We are dedicated to preserving the natural area of Bull's Run and strive to develop the park as an environmental facility and educational resource for people of all ages.

Farewell to Barb!

Spring Nature Tots gave Barb Reuss a fond farewell at their final meeting by planting a tree in her honor up in the prairie. The Prairie was Barb's special project over her 10 years with Bull's Run Nature Sanctuary and Arboretum, dedicated to the memory of her parents.

The Board and Volunteers from WOW and Workdays also gave a Barb a special farewell on the final workday she organized on May 24. It's difficult to put into words what Barb has contributed over her tenure as naturalist for this small city woodland refuge. She was instrumental in creating Nature Tots for preschool-aged children and their care-givers, when the educational component of the naturalist's job shifted over the years. When she'd started as naturalist, schools regularly made field trips to the Arboretum. Later, she took education to the school and into the classroom, with only an occasional field trip. Nature Tots encourages the youngest community members to explore the world of nature with all the wonder of a searching child. Her dedication to land stewardship and attempting to maintain the diversity of the native floral species of the park that sustains the fauna living there, was only surpassed by her passion to educate the public, visitors and volunteers alike, of its importance to our community as a whole.

Thank you, Barb, for a job well done! You will be missed.

Welcome to Erin!

The Bull's Run Nature Sanctuary and Arboretum's Board of Directors is pleased to announce the selection of the new naturalist, Erin Skimming. After reviewing several applications submitted and meeting with the candidates, Erin was chosen to replace Barb Reuss. Erin is studying Environmental Engineering Technologies at Cincinnati State Technical and Community College. She is currently working the summer for Greene County Parks and will use that training, along with the knowledge and insights Barb was able to share with her prior to her departure, to take the Arboretum forward into a promising future. Erin brings experience with children gained as an intern with Vision Trek in Cincinnati. We are excited to have her join us as we continue to nurture this unique resource for the benefit of all ages in our community.

Work Days at Bull's Run

Bull's Run Arboretum was again one of the sites around the city that benefited from the Middletown EARTH DAY Festival 2014 held on April 12 and hosted by Keep Middletown Beautiful at the new Cincinnati State Campus downtown. Almost three dozen volunteers put in just over 118 man-hours in one morning to mulch trails, help clean up trash, pull garlic mustard (an invasive plant species), weed and mulch the memorial trees outside the fence, and plant 35 young trees. The blue tubes you will see throughout the arboretum protect the young sassafras, black gum, hazelnut, pecan, persimmon, tulip poplar, witch hazel, spice bush and pawpaw seedlings from predation by hungry wildlife.

The April 26th work day had 11 volunteers show up for 30 hours of hard work. The rest of the 48 seedlings were planted, along with sprouted acorns. More euonymus (another invasive) was pulled away from the shooting star patch and two teams cut and daubed honeysuckle down the shelter hill, while others pulled garlic mustard.

Fourteen members of the skydiving Team Fastrax made another welcome appearance at the work day on May 17th, along with 12 volunteers from the community to put in over 78 man-hours of labor. Both men and women pitched in to remove garlic mustard, bush honeysuckle and spread mulch along the trails, plus weeding, planting and mulching the two butterfly gardens.

The May 24th workday saw 11 volunteers donating 41 hours of labor to pull the last large patch of garlic mustard out by its roots. Erin Skimming, the new naturalist, also got a first-hand look at what wonderful volunteers can do to keep the Arboretum a welcoming natural area.

Another Great Garage Sale!

Another great effort by donors, pre-sale price markers, staffers and shoppers! What better way to make new friends, turn your lightly used items that were taking up room in your home and turning them into treasures for someone else, all the while raising funds to support Bull's Run Arboretum. Ed and Rose Grau once again opened their home providing us the opportunity to invite people to visit Bull's Run and bring in some needed money. Proceeds from the sale were nearly $2500! "Wow, what a garage sale!" Thank you to the Graus for their longtime confidence and generous support and to all the participants, donors, buyers and volunteers!

Something New to Watch for on our Website

This month I will be starting a series of short films centered around Bull's Run, physical science and environmental topics. I will be providing supplementary articles and material with each video, so that you can explore the topic in greater detail, if you so choose. As always, if you enjoy them, please share them wherever possible! The first video will be shared very soon, until then, here is a bit of primer!

Bull's Run Nature Sanctuary and Arboretum

“Nature Sanctuary”, what does that mean, exactly? We've all grown up with a popular image of what “nature” looks like. It is big. It is dramatic. It's the realm of inspirational posters, National Geographic documentaries and Ansel Adams photographs. To most of us, nature is a place that we have to travel to reach. We strap on our boots, pack up the car and head out to the nearest National Forest, metro park or to Bull's Run. After a few gulps from a water bottle, we pass through the gates and officially enter nature. This, we think, is where nature is. It is neatly contained within these fences. It blocks out any sight of civilization. It is a place meant for relaxation and appreciation. This, of course, begs the question: where were we before we passed through that gate?

We were still in nature. In fact, you have never left nature once in your entire life. Nature fills your lungs when you breathe and fills your glass when you are thirsty. Nature surrounds and encompasses you. We are not standing on the outskirts of nature and looking in, we are an increasingly important link in nature's chain.

What does this mean to those of us that wish to protect and preserve nature? To me, it is great news. It means I don't have to focus my efforts on faraway places that I might never see. Instead of simply mailing a check to some forest on another continent, I can grab a shovel and work with nature directly. I can plant native trees and flowers and watch them grow over the years. I can watch wildlife find a home in them. I can watch children's eyes light up with wonder as they discover them. To me, this is what makes Bull's Run great. Bull's Run may not have the luster of Yellowstone or the size of the Amazon. It may only be 11 acres, but that it is what makes it great. It's great not in spite of its size, but because of it. It's great because it is right in the middle of our community.

You don't have to go very far to help protect nature. We are constantly in need of new ideas and more helping hands. The effort it takes to maintain Bull's Run is far from small. There are always new sights to see and new issues to solve. We are proud of the work we do at Bull's Run. It may be a small patch of the woods, but it is our patch of the woods. Please, come join us.

Update on Bridge Project

Last summer the major project was replacing not one, but two bridges along the red trail, thanks to memberships, generous donations and grants from the Middletown Community Foundation and the Miriam G Knoll Foundation. Late last year we received funds from the S. L. Gimbel Foundation Advised Fund at The Community Foundation to further enhance the trail leading to those bridges for renovating the steps. We also have volunteers willing to tackle one of the smaller bridges with a new, low impact design utilizing materials already on the property. We appreciate all of the work that goes in to repairing and maintaining the trail system at Bull's Run.

Memorial Trees Policy

Last year we replaced several trees between Rosedale Road and the fence using the last open areas in the Memorial Plantings area of Bull's Run. Moving forward, any plantings in memory or honor of a loved one will follow a new policy. A tree may be selected from a list of native species known to be available from local nurseries, to be planted within the fenced wooded area for a donation of at least $500 (price dependent on source). The donation will be listed in the newsletter following the planting and on the website, www.bullsrn.org, and the donors and honoree's family will be given the GPS coordinates of the planted tree, but otherwise it may remain unmarked.

NEW PROJECT – MEMORIAL REFLECTION AREA

Now that the major bridge project is completed, we are ready to focus on something new that we have dreamed of for several years. Memorial plantings began over 30 years ago, have been added to over those years and are now creating a new leafy canopy between the road and the fence. We have plans to create an area for reflecting on nature, loved ones, and life. Jeff Michel has rendered a drawing of our vision, including the historical marker that was originally placed along the walk, a new memorial monument and benches, accessible via a packed aggregate pathway from the parking area off Rosedale. Work should begin in the fall. The memorial monument will display names of those loved ones you wish to honor with a donation to Bull's Run. The benches can also be dedicated to someone for a year. Details can be found on the enclosed donation form and on the website. Please consider this lasting dedication to loved ones that will support your Arboretum into the future.

LINKS TO LEARNING

Welcome to a new feature of the newsletter. We will feature links to websites we hope will be of interest to our members and readers, some you may already be familiar with, others may be new. In the interest of education about the wonderful world we live in, how it works, and how we can be better stewards toward it, we offer these informational links to learning. We welcome suggestions for future issues and hope to hear some feedback on the Arboretum's website, www.bullsrn.org, and the Facebook page, www.facebook.com/bullsrnarboretum.

DragonflyTV showcases eager young scientists in a way that encourages all kids to discover the wonders of science. It's a new approach in science television for kids, because it features ordinary children and their own science investigations. Whether shooting over moguls on freeride skis, getting up close and personal with alligators, or cooking up experiments in their own kitchens, the DragonflyTV kids empower viewers to explore, question, and learn. In each episode, children tell how they pursued their own investigations, communicating the infectious excitement that comes with making their own discoveries. DragonflyTV was created in collaboration with Project Dragonfly at Miami University, which founded Dragonfly magazine, the 1st national magazine to feature children's investigations and discoveries. Major funding for DragonflyTV is provided by the National Science Foundation.

Sixth Annual Prairie Plant Seminar and Tour

HOT! HOT! HOT! Don't miss this year's "Bulls Run Tall Grass Prairie" tour. See, smell and touch our prairie grasses and wildflowers. Local volunteer and "backyard naturalist", John Whittington will again lead our sixth annual prairie tour on Sunday, August 17, beginning at 2 PM. (John most recently co-presented our third Winter Tree Identification Class.) Meet in the shelter for an entertaining Prairie Seminar, to be followed by a tour of the Bull's Run Prairie. John has visited many SW Ohio prairie sites and will share his observations. Bull's Run has an impressive collection of prairie plant species...right here...that you might otherwise have to travel to in order to see. Learn a little, see a lot and have a fun afternoon at the prairie. Dress for the weather. In August, prairie weather is supposed to be HOT! A hat, sunglasses, insect repellent and a water bottle are good ideas. Cameras are welcome! Rain or shine, the tour goes on, but not in a storm. Join our "backyard naturalists" and learn a little nature at Bulls Run. Questions: call John at 513-423-2081.

In Kind Donations and Services

Ed and Rose Grau

We rely on your generosity to keep this unique natural area a valuable resource to the community.

Thank you!

Consider a Donation to the BRNSA General or Endowment Funds

With each generous gift we are inspired, energized, and committed to continue to teach children and the community at large, protect and enhance wildlife habitat through land stewardship, and make the public aware of the importance of the work at hand. Many have made memorial contributions that have benefited Bull's Run, either as plantings, memorial benches or toward the bridge rebuilding project. In 2010, Bull's Run Endowment Fund established was, managed by the Middletown Community Foundation. Since then, several contributions, either as donations or decisions to include Bull's Run in their will, have added to the fund. Please consider Bull's Run in your future plans. Thank you!

Nature Tots

Spring Nature Tots explored the arboretum as it woke up from a long winter nap. Preschool-aged children, along with their caregivers, joined Barb as they had fun getting closer to nature. For those families that have participated in Nature Tots throughout the past years, please join me for a reunion once a month during the summer to see the changes the season brings. Bug repellent and water bottles are strongly recommended.
